THE LITTLE CHICK WHO TRIED

Once upon a time, there was a little chick named Chiku. Chiku was learning to walk. He took one step… and fell down. “Oh no!” said Chiku. He tried again. One step… two steps… oops! He fell again.
Chiku felt sad and said,"I cannot walk. "Mama Hen came and said,"Try again, my little one. You can do it!"
Chiku wiped his tears. He stood up again. Step… step… step…
This time, he did not fall!
Chiku started walking happily!
He chirped, “I did it! I did it!”
Mama Hen smiled and hugged him.

Moral of the Story :
Keep trying. You will learn and succeed!

RIYA AND THE MAGIC OF TRYING

Riya was a cheerful little girl who loved to draw. She dreamed of becoming a great artist one day. But there was one problem—Every time she tried to draw, her pictures didn’t look perfect. One day, she drew a butterfly. But its wings were uneven. Riya frowned and said, "Oh no… I am not good at drawing. "She put her colors away and decided to stop trying. The next day, her teacher noticed and asked,"Riya, why aren’t you drawing today? "Riya replied sadly,"My drawings are not good. I always make mistakes. "The teacher smiled kindly and said,"Mistakes are proof that you are trying. Every great artist started just like you. "Riya thought about this. She decided to try again. This time, she drew a flower. It wasn’t perfect… but it was better than before. Day after day, Riya kept practicing. She made mistakes, but she did not give up. Slowly, her drawings became more colorful and beautiful. Her lines became smoother. Her confidence grew. One day, the school held an Rangotsav Celebration art competition. Riya felt nervous, but she remembered her teacher’s words.
She took a deep breath and started drawing. She gave her best effort. When the results were announced. Riya won first prize! She couldn’t believe it. Her teacher smiled and said,"See what happens when you keep trying? "Riya smiled proudly and said,"I learned that mistakes help us grow!"

Moral of the Story: Never be afraid of mistakes. Keep trying, and you will succeed.
